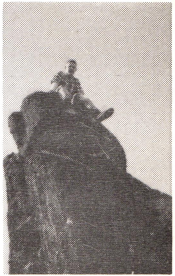
EASTER ISLAND



'Easter Island is the most remarkable open air museum to be found anywhere in the Pacific. Here on the most isolated of Polynesian Islands are to be found in abundance the material remains of a sophisticated and complex culture which produced roads, towers, gigantic sculpture, masonry lined caves, and many other unique monuments. Under unusual isolation were developed a complex religion, a written language, a systematic interest in the mysteries of solar and stellar movements, and engineering techniques capable of the precise movements and erection of statues weighing many scores of tons.'
